OUR WEATHER.

The seasons alter; hoary headed frosts
Fall in the fresh lap of the crimson rose;
And on old Winter's chin and icy crown,
An odorous chaplet of sweet Summer Buds
Is, as in mocking set; the Spring, the Summer,
The chilling Autumn, angry Winter, change
Their wonted liveries, and th' amazed world,
By their increase, now knows not which is which. SHAKSPEARE.

PLAY BILL,

Written by Sir Matthew Hale, and posted on the corners of the streets in London.

For the benefit of the poor in spirit, by command of the Supreme Governor of the world. At the desire of all who love his appearance—at the Theatre of the Universe, on the Evening of Time, will be performed

THE GREAT ASSIZE; OR, DAY OF JUDGMENT.

The SCENERY, which is now actually preparing, will not only surpass every thing that eye hath seen, but will infinitely exceed the utmost stretch of human conception. There will be a just representation of all the inhabitants of the world, in their various and proper colours, and their customs and manners will be so exactly and minutely delineated, that the most secret thought will be discovered. For God shall bring every work in judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or evil. Eccles. xii 14.

This Theatre will be laid out on a new plan, and will consist of Pit and Gallery only; and contrary to all others, the Gallery is fitted up for the reception of people of high (or heavenly) birth; and the Pit for low (or earthly.) N. B. The Gallery is very spacious and the Pit without bottom.—To prevent inconvenience there are separate doors for admitting the company; and they are so different, that none can mistake that are not wilfully blind. The door which opens into the Gallery is very narrow, and the steps up to it appear somewhat difficult; for which reason there are seldom many people about it. But the door giving entrance into the Pit, is very wide, and seems commodious; which causes such numbers to flock to it, that it is generally crowded. N. B. The straight door leads towards the right hand, and the broad one to the left. It will be in vain for one with tinselled coat and borrowed language to personate one of high birth, in order to get admittance into the upper places: for there is one of wonderful and deep penetration, who will search and examine every individual; and all who are not savingly converted, but die in their sins; and all who have not learned the language of Canaan, and all who cannot sing the song of Moses and the Lamb: all those who are not born again, and baptised with the Holy Ghost; all who have not received a white stone and a new name written therein, all these must be turned to the left hand.

The Principal Performers

Are described 2d Thess. I, 7, 8, 9; Mat. xxv. 31, 32; Dan. vii. 9, 10. But as there are some people much better acquainted with a play-bill, than the word of God, it may not be amiss to transcribe a verse or two for their perusal: "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel," but "to be glorified in his saints." A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him. Thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousands stood before him. The judgment was set and the books were opened——And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire—Rev. xx. 15.

ACT I, of this grand and solemn piece, Will be opened by an Archangel with the trump of God. And the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised. I Cor. xv. 52.

ACT II, will be a procession of Saints in white, with golden harps, the music accompanied with a new song, Hallelujahs, shouts of joy, and humble praise.

ACT III, will be an assemblage of all the ungenerate. When instead of music and divine songs, there will be lamentation, and mourning and woe, accompanied with weeping and gnashing of teeth. To conclude with an Oration by

THE SON OF GOD.

It is written in the 25th of Matthew, from the 34th verse to the end of the chapter—but for the sake of those who seldom read the scriptures, I shall here transcribe two verses, "Then shall the King say to them on his right hand, "Come ye blessed of my father inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; Then shall he say also to them on the left hand, "Depart from me ye cursed, into everlasting fire; prepared for the devil and his angels."

After which the curtain will drop.

Their joys and sorrows then what tongue can tell?
Some rais'd on high and others doom'd to Hell!
These praise the Lamb, and sing redeeming love,
Lodg'd in his bosom all his goodness prove;
While those who trampled under foot his grace,
Are banish'd now forever from his face.
Divided thus, a gulph is fixed between,
Dread everlasting! blest, eternal scene.

O that they were wise, that they consider their latter end. Deut. xxxii. 29.——

Tickets of admittance into the Pit, are sold at every place of temptation, where the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life are displayed.

The price is given away to these things, and sinning against God. For "thus saith the Lord, the soul that sinneth it shall die." Ezek. xviii—4.

Tickets of admittance into the Gallery may be had gratis, at the fountain open for sin and for uncleanliness, (and no where else.) Acts iv. 12. But will only be given to those who are willing to deny all ungodliness, and take up the cross daily, to forsake all self righteousness and follow Christ in the regeneration. He that hath ears to hear let him hear. Mat. xi. 15. Be not deceived: God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth that shall be also reap. Gal. vi. 7. Tickets not transferable, and no money will be taken at the door; all that are admitted into the Galleries must be sprinkled with the blood of Christ and sealed with Immanuel's signet.

Prepare to meet thy God! Amos. iv. 12. For in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh. Mat. xxiv.

From a London paper received at the Office of the N. York Commercial Advertiser.

UTILITY OF CLIMBING BOYS.

Humanity has often revolted at the sufferings of the unfortunate children who are driven by the necessity, or the unnatural cupidity of their parents, to adopt the wretched life of a chimney sweeper. It is however, a fact well known that many pursue this miserable avocation as a matter of choice, and seem in the general scale of society to enjoy as much happiness as those of their own age who obtain a livelihood by other and less disagreeable means.

The unfeeling and thoughtless have often applied to this hapless class, in allusion to the uniform blackness of their costume, and in derision, the epithet of clergymen—but a recent occurrence in the city seems to give fair ground for a change in this term, and to justify the transfer of these sooty beings from the church to the law. The occurrence to which we allude is this—About a fortnight ago, Mr. Wetherly, a silversmith in the Poultry, who is the proprietor of a house in King-street, Cloth Fair, having repeatedly applied to his tenant, (Mr. Watts, a grocer and cheesemonger,) for half a year's rent without success, thought it expedient to direct his upholsterer, a man of great respectability in Fore-street Cripplegate, to levy a distress for the amount. The upholsterer, although a broker, had not been accustomed to this unpleasant part of his profession, and would have declined the commission, did he not feel that by so doing he should disoblige a customer. Having undertaken to execute the warrant of distress, he proceeded to the house of the tenant, accompanied by one of his porters, whom he left in possession. Upon enquiry, however, he found that the family could not accommodate his man with a bed, unless under circumstances of great personal inconvenience; and observing an abundance of property on the premises, and thinking too, that the proceedings were rather harsh, he determined to remove his man, and to rely upon the honesty of the people not to take away the goods, which they solemnly assured him they would not. In defiance of this promise, however, and in breach of that gratitude which was certainly due to the broker, they that night, "took a flight by moonlight," as it is called, and carried off the greater part of their furniture. On the ensuing morning, when the broker went to the house, he had the mortification to find that it was shut up, and the "bird flown;" thus he was not alone fixed with the rent, but he was deprived of that which was more material to the landlord, namely, the possession of the house. Knowing that if any King's taxes were in arrear, the tax gatherer would have the power of making forcible entry into the premises, he instantly went to him, hoping to avail himself of his assistance.—Mrs. Watts, however, was as well advised as Mr. Broker, for she had just been to pay the taxes, and now bid defiance to him and her Landlord. The broker was irritated at this ungenerous return for his indulgence, and determined, if possible, to turn the tables upon the lady. Having ascertained that the stock in trade and some other property still remained on the premises, he set his emissaries to work, if possible, to gain admission by stratagem. Mrs. Watts was still his match. She got into the house with her daughter, and from the window bid Mr. Broker and his friends defiance; and, in fact, threatened, if they came too near, to salute them in a manner not likely to be very agreeable to their olfactory nerves. The broker went to Mr. Wetherley, and stated to him the case, supposing that Mr. W. would have exonerated him from all further responsibility.—Mr. W. however, acted under the advice of his attorney, and said he was sorry that the broker, by the negligence of his servants, or by his own illtimed humanity, had been thus made answerable for the rent. The broker retired not a little mortified at the issue of this unpleasant business, but resolved, if possible, to outwit the fair cause of his discomfiture. Accordingly he placed watches so as to prevent the removal of any part of the property during the night. The remainder of his plan was developed in the morning. At five o'clock he rose from his bed, and proceeded to the neighborhood of the besieged garrison, into which, it seems, provisions had been conveyed the preceding night, by means of the window on the first floor. It now occurred to his mind to call in the aid of a sweep and through his means to gain legal possession of the premises. To this end he called up a master chimney-sweep in the neighborhood, and by the promise of half-a-guinea soon enlisted him under his banners. One of the sooty battalion was called from his truckle, by the familiar epithet of "Bandy Bob," and told that there was a job to be done. Bandy Bob at first grumbled a little at his early rising, but upon being promised a shilling for his part of the business, he moved with additional alacrity, and on being further informed that he was to go down, and not up a chimney, the novelty of the operation, as well as the goodness of the joke, rendered him a warm coadjutor. He tho't it was "a prime piece of lark," & the more especially as he owed old mother Watts a grudge, in consequence of her having refused to give him his accustomed perquisite of a penny and a slice of bread and butter, when he last had the honor of waiting upon her in the ordinary course of his profession.

The preliminaries of attack being now arranged, Bandy Bob was furnished with the writ of possession, and instructed to descend the chimney of Mrs. Watts' house, and, upon reaching the parlor, to produce his writ, declare himself in possession, and open the door to his employment. Bob never undertook an affair with greater alacrity. He got upon the top of the house through the permission of a kind and considerate neighbor, and soon scrambled along the parapet wall to the desired spot. While matterns were thus going on above, Mrs. Watts arose from her slumbers, and approached the window, where she saw the broker and his satellites still on the watch. She instantly threw up the casement, and in the plentitude of fancied security, "wished them a good morning"—"hoped their early rising would not disagree with them;" but at the same time advised them to waste no more time, as she was "too deep for a score of such ninnies." She then launched out in a variety of pleasantries after her own manner, and in very obliging terms recommended the broker "to go home and study the law—or teach his mammy to milk ducks." While thus indulging in her apparent triumph, she was suddenly alarmed by a loud shout of exultation from below stairs; she instantly ran off to ascertain the cause, and to her surprise and dismay found Bandy Bob in full possession of her parlor with his writ in his hand. She screamed for the assistance of her daughter; but Bandy Bob, true to his instructions, advanced to the door, opened it, and admitted the besiegers, whose cheers soon alarmed the neighborhood, and sunk the exultation of poor Mrs. Watts to humble supplications for mercy. The due forms of law were then observed, and thus Bandy Bob obtained the credit of being a most important agent in a law affair. Such an entry having been gained without force, or the removal of a single barrier, is perfectly legal: and a sweep with a writ in his hand, in such a case, is as valid an officer as the sheriff of London himself. The subject caused a good deal of bustle in the street, great crows were assembled, and much laughter was excited at the expense of poor Mrs. Watts, who was considered as deservedly punished for a gross breach of faith. The broker in future will, no doubt, remember the old adage, "Possession is nine-tenths of the law."

ALEXANDRIA:
SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1819.

Old Frederick, king of Prussia, with justice surnamed "the great," had, in common with all wise men, a vast reliance on the utility of experience. A young graduate once presented a petition to him, requesting his majesty would appoint him a supreme general. The king wrote under the petition, 'turn to your bible, and in the 10th chapter and 5th verse of the second book of Samuel, you will find it thus written, "Tarry at Jerico until your beard is grown, and then come again."

He was fully sensible of the contagious nature of liberty. He knew that the spirit of freedom was epidemical, and he would never employ his subjects in any manner that would put them in the way of catching the disorder. When doctor Franklin applied to him to lend his assistance to America, "pray doctor," said the old veteran, "what is the object they mean to attain?" "Liberty, sire," replied the philosopher of Philadelphia, "liberty—that freedom which is the birth-right of man." The king, after a short pause, made this memorable, and kingly answer:—"I was born a prince—I am become a king,—and I will not use the power which I possess to the ruin of my own trade. I was born to command, and the people were born to obey."

It has been remarked that Frederick knew men well, and was an excellent judge of their merit. Many instances, however, might be given, in which he was greatly deceived. Before general Laudohn entered into the service of the emperor, he offered himself to Frederick, and asked to serve in his troops. "That man's physiognomy does not please me," said the king on seeing him; and he declined his offer, of which he frequently afterwards had reason to repent.

Nothing was so disagreeable to Frederick as ceremony, which he avoided as much as possible. When he went to Koninsberg, to receive the homage of the Prussians, he took the marquis D'Argent with him, to point out to him the ceremonies observed in honour of these occasions, that he might conform to them. When the ceremony was at an end, he asked the marquis whether he had gone well through it? "Very well," said the marquis, "but I know one would acquit himself still better." "And who is that?" asked the king. "Louis the fifteenth," replied D'Argent.—"And I," rejoined the king, "know somebody that would go through it much better than Louis the fifteenth." "Who is that," D'Argent enquired in his turn. "Baron, the player."

Whilst Voltaire was still at Potsdam, an Englishman arrived, who told the king that he could retain, word for word, a tolerably long discourse, after hearing it once read. Frederick put him to the test, and the Englishman succeeded. At that moment, Voltaire was announced, who came to read a little copy of verses, which he had just finished, o the king. To amuse himself, Frederick hid the Englishman in an adjoining cabinet, recommending to him to get by heart what the poet was about to read. Voltaire entered and recited his verses. The king listened to them coldly, and observed, "upon my word, my dear Voltaire, I do not conceive what you would be at:—for some time you have chosen to borrow the verses of others and pass them off as your own." Voltaire vowed that the verses were his own, and that he had, but that moment, finished them. "That may be," said the king; but I have just seen an Englishman who has already shewn them to me, as his." Having made this remark, Frederick sent for the Englishman, to whom he said, "be so good as to let me hear the verses you showed me this morning." The Englishman repeated them without omitting a single syllable. "He must be the devil," exclaimed Voltaire, in a rage. The king, after amusing himself for some time with his fury, owned to him the trick, and finished by making the Englishman a present for the pleasure he had afforded him.

Before Voltaire avowed himself the author of the Maid of Orleans, Frederick pretended that it was injurious to the first wit in France, to attribute to him so miserable a rhapsody; but no sooner did Voltaire adopt it, than the king made Algarotti read it to him, and said, "this is not the poem I have seen: this is charming: no one but Voltaire is capable of such a work." It was, however, the very same; but, such is the influence of names—and such is the occasional weakness even of the wisest among men.

Philadelphia, April 12.

The United States squadron were at Messina the 6th Jan. last, consisting of the Franklin 74, Com. Stewart; Guerriere frigate, capt. M'Donough; United States frigate, captain Crane; Erie sloop, captain Ballard; and Spark brig, captain Nicholson.

The frigate United States was to sail for home in about twenty days. The crews were generally healthy. It was understood that the plague continued very bad at Tangiers and Tunis.

The Importer, from Liverpool, brought home seven Seneca Indians.

These red brethren of ours sailed from Boston about 18 months since, in the ship Sally, and have travelled through England, Scotland and Ireland. They must, no doubt carry with them to their tribe, many ideas of the disadvantages of civilization—for they tell us, they must prefer their former pursuits to any thing they have seen in their travels. [N. Y. Gaz.

The proceeds of the Portuguese brig Paqueta, and cargo, prize to the Artigan privateer Republican, have been decreed to the owners by the U. States' District Court, in Maine, after paying duties and charges. The restoration was on the ground that we were at peace with Portugal—and that the Republican had increased her armament in the United States. [Salem Paper.

THE MAIL ROBBERS.

Trenton, (N. J.) April 12.

On the 7th inst. the trial of Joseph Maurice, Pierre Betrand and A. L. Nublet, otherwise called Dr. Henry, and Dr. Dezeraau, for robbing the mail of the U. States, on the first Feb. last, in the county of Essex in this state, came on before the Circuit Court sitting in this place. The trial commenced at 10 A. M. and continued until 10 at night, when Judge Washington delivered the charge to the Jury, and they retired to deliberate and decide upon their verdict. Between 11 and 12 o'clock the same night, the Jury returned, finding the prisoners not guilty of the counts in the indictment charging them with putting the life of the carrier in jeopardy by the use of dangerous weapons, but guilty of the counts, which charged them with the robbery of the mail, not affecting life, but subjecting them, under the act of congress, to ten years imprisonment.

From the charge of Judge Washington, and also from his remarks the day following, when the prisoners were brought up to receive sentence, it was evident, that in the opinion of the court, the accused were guilty of the offence, under the act of congress, subjecting the whole to the punishment of death. The Jury, we understand, were divided on the counts of the indictment found by the Grand Jury, but finally agreed to a verdict not involving life.

The poor criminals were very sensibly affected with the merciful result of their trial, and manifested their gratitude to the counsel who defended them, (on the verdict of the Jury being made known) by the strongest expressions of gratitude and affection. The scene, on this occasion, was peculiarly affecting.

The counsel for the prisoners, Messrs L. H. Stockton, Charles Ewing, and Garret D. Wall, discharged their duty with great zeal and ability in behalf of the unhappy men—and the prosecution on the part of the United States, by the district attorney, Joseph M'Ilvaine, Esq. was ably supported.

About one half of the jury was from the county of Essex, the remainder from this place and vicinity.

It is a subject of great satisfaction to many that this trial has not resulted in taking the lives of these unhappy men, according to the act of congress, which would probably have been carried into effect in this vicinity. We hope never to see so melancholy a spectacle presented to our view. It is probable that the offenders, from their conduct and behaviour, since they were apprehended, have not been accustomed to the commission of crimes; and we trust that the speedy detection and punishment which has followed those who have been engaged in robbing the mail in this part of the Union, will deter others from the like offence.

The criminals are all Frenchmen, and have all confessed since apprehended, the robbery with which they were charged, but deny any intention of personal injury. In extenuation of their offence they have urged their forlorn situation in a foreign land, destitute of the means of subsistence, and the failure of their exertions to obtain employment to relieve their necessities.—This, however, as observed by Judge Washington in his address to them, on passing sentence, was no excuse, especially in this country, as they were all young men, in the enjoyment of health and strength, and by labor at least, might have obtained the means of a comfortable subsistence.

The prisoners are confined in the penitentiary of this state near this place. [Federalist.

We are requested to state that John Linton, esq. of Prince William, is a candidate for the senate, to represent the counties of Fairfax and Prince William, in the place of John Love, esq. who has vacated his seat.

We are authorised to announce William H. Fitzhugh Esq. of Fairfax, as a Candidate for the next Senatorial district, composed at the next election, of the counties of Loudoun, Fairfax, and Fauquir.

We are authorised to state that Cuthert Powel, Esq. declines being considered a Candidate for the Senate for the next election.

Alex'a. Common Council.

April 15, 1819.

On the petition of Amos Alexander it is ordered, that the superintendent of police be directed to defer the removal of the trees opposite the house of the petitioner; and that the said petition be referred to Messrs. Keene and J. C. Vowell, to make a report on the subject to the council.

The council resumed the consideration of the bill entitled "an act limiting the superintendent of police in the expenditure of money," which was read a second and third time, and passed.

Ordered, That S. D. Harper and John Muncaster, the proprietors of ground on the west side of Pitt-street and to the south of Queen-street, do within the space of ten days remove the nuisance from the same; and in default thereof, that the superintendent of police cause the nuisance to be removed, and charge the expense to the lots and the proprietors thereof.

Ordered, That Joseph Mandeville, proprietor of ground east of Pitt-street and south of Queen-street, do remove a nuisance from the same in fifteen days; and in default thereof that the superintendent of police remove the same, and charge the expense to the proprietor of the said ground.

John Clark was appointed a watchman, in the place of John Wigs, resigned.

Leave was granted to bring in a bill, entitled "an act to amend an act for the inspection of fish;" which was read a first and second time, and the 9th rule being suspended, it was read a third time and passed.

Extract from the minutes.

of the Belvoir estate, on the river Potomac; and persons from the country, as well as water customers, are invited to that shore, where they may expect the best treatment, and every facility, in getting such supplies as they need, which that well known fishery, and the utmost attention of the subscriber, can afford. Having been long experienced in that business on the Delaware river, and having taken the fishery for several seasons, he has caused a complete outfit to be made, not only for taking Shad, as heretofore, but Herrings, of which it is well known that almost any number may be caught at that shore, when the gluts are in the river. A very complete and commodious fish-house, on the spot, may be made use of by persons disposed to put up fish extensively, and who bring barrels and salt for the purpose. A number of barrels, and a quantity of salt, may probably also be had at the fish-house. ——As the

at the mouth of Pohick Creek, on the same estate, is carried on this season by Mr. John Henderson, there will be the greater certainty that customers will not be disappointed in herrings, the two fisheries being near together: but country customers are cautioned not to come too early for herrings; as, of late years, they have several times done, and by returning home have missed of getting their supply, which afterwards was plentiful.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirious of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that hey will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or Vaccine Institution.

THE small pox having appeared in Alexandria, such persons as have been vaccinated by the subscriber are invited to attend at his office, on St. Asaph-street, between Prince and Duke streets, to have their arms examined. Indigent persons are also invited to the same place for the purpose of being vaccinated. The subscriber will attend at his office every day in the week except Sunday, from 7 o'clock until 10 in the morning, for the purpose of receiving them.

He proposes also to be less particular than heretofore in the investigation of their claims to the benefit of the institution, as may respect their indigence and length of residence in town. The subscriber earnestly requests all such citizens as may be acquainted with persons liable to contagion, to send them without delay as above directed, where they will be served effectually and gratuitously.
